

CIVIC TECH LOAN FORGIVENESS

David Frankel and Nik Marda

THE AVERAGE CS MAJOR HAS

$35,000

IN UNPAID STUDENT LOANS

SUPPORTING PUBLIC INTEREST

LACK OF DEBT FORGIVENESS MAKES PRIVATE SECTOR MORE APPEALING

Federal programs don't work

- Confusing, ineffective, and underfunded
- Just 262 people received Public Service Loan Forgiveness (PSLF) last year
- Only applies to certain federal loans

Law schools stepped in

- Law schools recognize the financial burdens of lower paying public interest careers
- Loan repayment assistance programs (LRAPs) help public interest lawyers pay off loans

INTRODUCING PICTURE GRANTS

THE PUBLIC INTEREST CIVIC TECH UNIVERSITY REPAYMENT EFFORT

Public Interest

Civic Tech

University Repayment

HOW IT WORKS

AN UNCONDITIONAL GRANT GIVEN BY THE UNIVERSITY PER YEAR THAT THE APPLICANT:

- Works for a 501(c)(3) or a city, state, or federal government
- Holds an engineering, design, or product position
- Still has unpaid student loans for an engineering, design, or product degree

“

Engineering schools must do more to enable their students to pursue civic opportunities
regardless of debt.

CHRIS KUANG

CO-FOUNDER OF CODING IT FORWARD